LIFE at YALE UNIVERSITY

If you are interested in an Ivy League University, Yale is definitely worth exploring. With a stunning tree-lined campus, Yale has been called “the most beautiful urban campus in America.” During the summer, Yale’s campus is filled with high school students, undergraduates, graduate students and professors; giving you a true Ivy League experience.

Yale has a unique layout of Residential Colleges. Each College boasts plenty of outdoor space in the courtyard, a game room, library and areas to socialize and study. You’ll also love living just a short walk from the Yale Bookstore, retail stores, coffee shops and restaurants.

Tony Sheldon, Executive Director, Program of Social Enterprise, Yale School of Management

Sponsored by Yale University, the Yale Summer Academy is an immersive, innovative leadership program for high school students. The program is designed to develop the next generation's leaders, top thinkers and change-makers.

The program will turn your passions into action and train you to be an agent of change in your community.

- Explore five academic majors at Yale, getting a preview of life at a world-class Ivy-League University. A rotation of academic enrichment courses is woven throughout these two weeks, imparting all necessary reasoning, rationale and topic-related knowledge.
- Courses are supplemented with daily “Explore Yale” breakout sessions that introduce you to Yale’s most celebrated and picturesque museums, libraries and landmarks.
- Working in groups, zero in on a social, local or global issue, then collaborate to develop a functional plan to inspire positive change.
- Leave the program having created an NGO, or piece of legislation that can be enacted.

From policy to public speaking, you’ll emerge with a stronger sense of the world around you and its relationship to your own strengths and skills. Tap into thought leaders and learn to enact change at one of America’s most prestigious universities.

TURN YOUR PASSION INTO ACTION

Many high school students are passionate about finding solutions to the issues they care about but are unsure of which actions to take. The program’s final project is a prime opportunity to set up your action plan. Using sustainability as a case study, the project-based component of the program introduces high-level leadership, advocacy and teamwork training. You and your group will agree upon an issue and use the knowledge learned in your courses to develop an initiative and begin to inspire change. You’ll showcase your group’s work during the Program Symposium at the end of the session.

TRIPS & ACTIVITIES

Social opportunities are a cornerstone of this program. In addition to time spent with your peers in daily classes and groups, you’ll make friends during recreational evening activities, on-campus excursions to museums and labs, and a weekend trip to New York City. You will explore Yale’s campus and visit places such as the Yale Peabody Museum and the Yale Center for Engineering Innovation and Design. During the weekend trip to New York City, you will experience the city and enjoy a sightseeing cruise of the stunning skyline. On Sunday, you’ll explore some of New Haven’s hot spots such as the world-famous Frank Pepe Pizzeria, Jordan’s — the worlds largest ropes course — or the Pez Factory.
